The Wyndham Hotel group contains many hotels that are requested by Farm Bureau members. Farm Bureau members get 10% off the hotels' lowest rate. In other words, when the general public pays $40 for a room, Farm Bureau members pay closer to $36. Likewise, a $60 room will be closer to $54, a $90 room will be closer to $81 and so forth.

An innovative, upscale hotel brand with nearly 100 properties in the U.S./ Canada, Caribbean and Mexico. Each Wyndham guest room includes the following amenities: coffeemaker, a choice of hypoallergenic pillows, shower massagers, complimentary weekday newspaper and upscale bath amenities. Most importantly, in 2007 the Wyndham Grand collection tier of hotels will be introduced featuring 11 Corinthia hotels throughout Europe & Africa.

The only “heads up” a member needs to have is that this program requires advanced reservation. The person behind the counter of the hotel isn’t going to know how to pull up the discount from their computer at the hotel, but a national operator will know exactly what the discount program is about and can easily make the reservation. If a member decides to stay at one of these motels at the last minute, they can simply call the national 1-800 number from a cell phone in the parking lot or a pay phone, set up the discount reservation, and then walk in. Pretty slick, isn’t it?

Members can simply call the toll-free number of the desired hotel listed above, say they are with the Idaho Farm Bureau, and give them the discount code #61810.

The Wydham Hotel Group sends Joel Benson a list of those using the program where it is then compared to membership databases. This is to prevent others from using the codes without membership in Idaho Farm Bureau.

If anyone, not having Farm Bureau insurance, stays in a hotel more than numerous times during a year anywhere in this country, it would be in their favor to sign up for an annual Farm Bureau membership because the saving will easily offset the annual fee and then they can simply have access to all the other discount benefits for the year. SPREAD THE WORD!!!
